History of Corinth

According to Greek legend, Sisyphus was a king of Corinth. For defying the gods with his insolent wit he was sentenced to the eternal drudgery of pushing a huge stone up a hill. When he would reach the summit, the stone would roll back to the bottom and force resumption of the task. Camus, a 20th-century philosopher, found in this legend of the Corinthian king a picture of modern man’s condition, the purposeless absurdity of life.

If Camus had read the two biblical letters sent to the Corinthians, he would have gotten a different picture, one with a message of purpose and hope for misdirected people. The attitude of these Corinthians, like their legendary king, smacked of proud self-centeredness. But instead of dealing with a capricious Zeus, these first-century Corinthians interacted with the gracious and loving God and His messenger, the Apostle Paul.

From a human point of view Paul probably had reason to wonder if many saints would be found in Corinth. The ancient city had a reputation for vulgar materialism. In the earliest Greek literature it was linked with wealth (Homer Iliad 2. 569-70) and immorality. When Plato referred to a prostitute, he used the expression “Corinthian girl” (Republic 404d). The playwright Philetaerus (Athenaeus 13. 559a) titled a burlesque play Ho Korinthiasteµs, which may be translated “The Lecher.” And Aristophanes coined the verb korinthiazomai to refer to fornication (Fragment 354). According to Strabo (Geography 8. 6-20) much of the wealth and vice in Corinth centered around the temple of Aphrodite and its thousand temple prostitutes. For this reason a proverb warned, “Not for every man is the voyage to Corinth.”

For a hundred years after 146 B.C. no one cared to make the voyage to Corinth. The city was destroyed because of its revolt against Rome. Only a few columns in the temple of Apollo survived the razing. All its citizenry was killed or sold into slavery.

But this favorable location did not go unused for long, as Julius Caesar refounded the city as a Roman colony in 46 B.C. In 27 B.C. it became the governmental seat for Achaia, from which seat Gallio as proconsul would allow Paul’s proclamation of the gospel. It was onto this new stage, which nonetheless preserved the vices of the old, that Paul stepped in A.D. 51. ¹

Introduction

First Corinthians reveals the problems, pressures, and struggles of a church called out of a pagan society. Paul addresses a variety of problems in the lifestyle of the Corinthian Christians: factions, lawsuits, immorality, questionable practices, abuse of the Lord’s Supper, and spiritual gifts. In addition to words of discipline, Paul shares words of counsel in answer to questions raised by the Corinthians.

Author

Pauline authorship of 1 Corinthians is almost universally accepted. In addition to the explicit statements of the epistle (1:1; 16:21), the vocabulary and teachings of the text point to Paul the apostle to the Gentiles. References to this letter in extra-biblical literature can be found as early as A.D. 95, when Clement of Rome mentions 1 Corinthians as having been written by Paul.

Date

First Corinthians was probably written during Paul’s third missionary journey in A.D. 56 or 57, with 2 Corinthians being written some six to eighteen months later. Paul had founded the church at Corinth during an eighteen-month stay in the city (A.D. 51–52). The Corinth which Paul knew had been founded as a Roman colony during the century before Christ. It was strategically located in the Roman province of Achaia on a narrow strip of land between the Aegean Sea and the Adriatic Sea, with two adjoining ports. Corinth’s location made it a center for trade routes passing from east to west, and the resulting prosperity brought both luxury and immorality. “To live like a Corinthian” meant to live in gross immorality, and many pagan temples located in Corinth encouraged this licentious way of life through temple prostitution.

Themes and Literary Structure

This epistle is quite orderly in its approach as it sequentially addresses a group of problems that have come to Paul’s attention. Paul also gives a series of perspectives on various questions and issues raised by the Corinthians in a letter. The three divisions of 1 Corinthians are: (1) the answer to Chloe’s report of divisions (chs. 1–4); (2) answer to the report of fornication and disorder (chs. 5–6); and (3) answer to the letter of questions (chs. 7–16).

As he prepares to deal with the serious problems present in the Corinthian church early on in the epistle, Paul proclaims the relevance and sufficiency of Christ for every area of the believer’s life. Christ Jesus “became for us wisdom from God—and righteousness and sanctification and redemption” (1:30). In dealing with the sexual immorality that had arisen in the Corinthian church, Paul stresses the importance of church discipline and purity (5:9–13). Here the apostle also indicates that a primary goal of such discipline is the restoration of the wayward. The relationship of Christian liberty and Christian love is also explored. Paul writes that “all things are lawful for me, but all things are not helpful” (6:12), and chapter 13 contains the most extensive and profound teaching on the self-giving character of Christian love. In addition, 1 Corinthians contains extensive doctrinal instruction on the place of spiritual gifts in the church (chs. 12–14), and on the nature of the resurrection body (ch. 15).²

Chronology of Contacts

The nature and number of Paul’s contacts and correspondence with the Corinthians after his first visit in A.D. 51 is subject to considerable debate. Let’s start with what we do know:

1. The length of Paul’s stay on his first trip to Corinth lasted one and one-half years, after which he sailed in A.D. 52 to Ephesus on his way to Jerusalem. Priscilla and Aquila accompanied Paul to Ephesus where they remained to meet and instruct the gifted Alexandrian Apollos whom they subsequently sent on to Corinth for ministry there (Acts 18:18-28).

2. While Apollos was ministering in Corinth (Acts 19:1), Paul returned to Ephesus on his third missionary journey, about A.D. 53, for a period of about two and one-half years (Acts 19). It was probably during the early part of Paul’s ministry in Ephesus that he wrote an unknown letter mentioned in 1 Corinthians 5:9, a letter seemingly misunderstood by the Corinthians (1Cor 5:10-11).

3. Paul learned of the divisions in the church at Corinth from the household of Chloe (1:11). Also, Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus (16:17) seem to have brought Paul specific questions on issues dividing the church. First Corinthians was written, probably about A.D. 56, to address these matters.

4. This is where it becomes more difficult. There is possibly an additional letter and/or visit that is not recorded in the book of Acts, but some see clues in 2nd Corinthians that lead them to this conclusion. It’s possible 1st Corinthians did not resolve the problems in the church. Possibly Timothy returned to Paul bearing this news (1Cor 4:17; 16:10, 2 Cor 1:1). Paul then decided to revisit the church (2 Cor 2:1), a sorrowful visit ensued. (See 2 Cor. 12:14, 13:1, which speaks of a possible third visit, the last leg of Paul’s third missionary journey)

5. Then possibly after a short visit Paul sent a letter borne by Titus, which it grieved him deeply to write (2 Cor. 2:4) apparently because of its disciplinary nature (2 Cor. 7:8-9).

Or

4 & 5. Paul did not visit and the letter he refers to sent by Titus was 1st Corinthians. This would correspond to the events recorded for us in Acts 18-20.

6. After the silversmiths’ riot Paul left Ephesus bound for Troas to meet Titus. Because Paul could not find him there, he anxiously pushed on to Macedonia, apparently with grave concern about Titus’ safety (2 Cor. 2:12-13; 7:5). There he met Titus who brought good news about the general well-being of the Corinthian church but bad news about a group opposed to Paul.

7. From Macedonia Paul wrote 2 Corinthians and followed it up with a visit about A.D. 57 (Acts 20:1-4).

1 Corinthians 13:1-13 – An image of a more excellent way than spiritual gifts

This chapter sometimes is confusing, especially with regard to that which is perfect in verse 10. So I have attempted to lay out a visual image of the argument Paul presents to the Corinthians of a more excellent way than their present way. Paul tells us what he is doing in 1Cor 12:31.

An Argument of Contrasts

1Cor 12:31
Present Way ⬅️ (at the time of writing) → More Excellent Way (at some time later)

Verses 1-8:
Love ⬅️ (in the first 7 verses Paul defines Love) → Love (vs.8 Love won’t end)

Verse 8:
Prophecies ⬅️ will fall away
Tongues ⬅️ will cease
Knowledge ⬅️ will vanish away

Verses 9-10:
Partial ⬅️ (will be done away) → Perfect (complete)
Knowledge ⬅️ done away
Prophecy ⬅️ done away

Verse 11:
Child ⬅️ (will be put away) → Adult Man
Spoke as child ⬅️ put away
Understood as child ⬅️ put away

Verse 12:
Now ⬅️ (see self dimly, know partially) → Then See self clearly

Verse 13:
Now ⬅️ (faith, hope, love) → Then
Faith ⬅️ ABIDE
Hope ⬅️ ABIDE
Love ⬅️ ABIDE

Love: greatest

Heb 11:1 “Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.”

Rom 8:24 “For we were saved in this hope, but hope that is seen is not hope; for why does one still hope for what he sees?”
1 Corinthians Chapter 13
October 15th

OVERVIEW
In this chapter, Paul contrasts the better way to live with God compared to the spiritual gifts mentioned in chapter 12. The better way is faith, hope and love, which will not end, whereas spiritual gifts end.
