

THE SWORD OF THE SPIRIT

To Whom Shall We Go?

There are a lot of people that choose to put confidence in the teachings of man. To some, your worth is determined by a piece of paper that a college puts out and how many letters go behind your name. Mankind will flock to a new philosophy or book that some "wise man" puts out because they think it will enrich their lives. To whom shall we go and in whom will we put our trust?

Peter recognized that there is no other source of wisdom worth seeking except Christ's (Jn. 6:66-68). Did you notice the response of Peter to Jesus' question? Despite all the great philosophers like Plato,

Aristotle, Epimenides, etc., Peter recognized that no one could ever say anything more important than what Christ said! While the rest of humanity was struggling to figure out what the meaning of life was and how to better themselves, Peter saw that what Christ had to offer extended far beyond what we can experience in this life. Man will never come up with any better teaching than Christ's teaching (1 Cor. 1:19-21). In light of this truth, I ask you the same question Peter asked Jesus: "To whom will you go?" Who else can offer you the words of eternal life?
