“Esteem Others Better”

David A. Cox

“Let nothing be done through selfish ambition or conceit, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than himself” — (Philippians 2:3)

The Lord calls us to be selfless in our lives. As we learn to be selfless in our lives, it should produce deep-seated joy in our hearts. The best example of this is the life of Jesus Christ. Paul follows this admonition with, “Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who being in the form of God, did not consider equality with God something to be grasped, but emptied Himself by taking the form of a servant, coming in the likeness of men” (Philippians 2:5-7). The attitude of humility or selflessness gives us hope for any real future. Let us consider things we need to do to have an attitude of selflessness.

Forget your rights, but remember your responsibilities. The biggest problem for us to become selfless is forgetting our rights. We live in a land that values rights, and it is a blessing that we live in a place where our rights are protected. However, in following Christ, we must put our rights behind us and remember the responsibilities incumbent on us as followers of Christ. Jesus gave us the example of living our lives; He never claimed that, as God, He should not have to endure the things He did to pay the ransom for our sins. Indeed, we should forever be changed by the selfless act of Christ.

Forget your inconveniences, but remember your blessings. As the disciples of Christ, we will suffer hardships, difficulties, and inconveniences. Jesus even taught this to the disciples while He was on the earth (Matthew 5:11-12; Luke 9:23-24; 9:57-62). The blessings before us should temper our attitude toward difficulties, hardships, and inconveniences. Paul said, “For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us” (Romans 8:18).

Forget your accomplishments, but remember your debts to others. In writing to the Philippians, Paul reminds us just before the instruction to have the mind of Christ said, “Let each of you look out not only for his own interests, but also for the interest of others” (Philippians 2:4). Perhaps we do not understand our debt to others. Christ died so that we could be saved. He did not just die for me or just for people who look like me and talk like me. He died for the whole world, that is, everyone. If He paid the debt for mine and everyone else's sins, what is my obligation to them? It is to love them as Christ loved them. It will require that I not be boastful, arrogant, or prideful in my manner of life but rather walk among others in humility, gentleness, and forbearance.

We need to learn to "esteem others better" than ourselves. In doing this, we must learn to be selfless and exhibit the spirit of Christ in our lives.

The Call to Discipleship

Nick Woods

Many of us who faithfully gather each week to worship gladly answer to the call of Christian. And while that is of course an accurate description of those who follow the Christ, it is worthwhile to note that in the New Testament, the term "Christian" appears only three times. This designation was made by those outside this belief system to describe people zealously embracing their new faith.

However, throughout the Scriptures, early disciples primarily referred to themselves as "disciples." We can examine the New Testament to determine significance of being a disciple, and the characteristics of a true follower of Jesus.

First, being a disciple means being devoted to learning from the Master. This is demonstrated when Jesus commends Mary's choice to sit at His feet and listen to His words while visiting her home. Luke 10:38-42 emphasizes that learning from Him is of utmost importance. As disciples, we should eagerly absorb everything Jesus taught and allow His teachings to shape our thoughts and actions.

Equally important, disciples must follow Jesus' example of sacrifice to truly become like Him. Jesus emphasized this when He instructed His disciples to deny themselves, take up their cross, and follow Him. He also warns us in Matthew 16:24-26 that gaining the world at the cost of one's soul is a worthless pursuit. Discipleship requires that we be willing to suffer for Jesus, giving up worldly attachments, and embracing a different life path if necessary (Luke 14:26-27, 14:33, Matthew 8:18-22).

And, as disciples, we are called to mold ourselves into the image of Jesus. We must renounce sin and align our lives with His teachings (Matthew 5:20, 16:24). Jesus is our ultimate example, and we are to become like Him (Matthew 10:24-25). This transformative process may involve tribulations and challenges, but it is worth the effort for the reward that awaits us (Acts 14:21-22).

Being a disciple of Jesus is more than a mere label. It is a commitment to transformation, even when that transformation comes at a cost. We strive for holiness and seek to be with God for eternity. We must embrace the journey of discipleship and be willing to suffer and endure hardships for their devotion to Christ.

Today, many people claim to be Christians, but fewer embody the true essence of discipleship. Let us examine ourselves and ask whether we are truly disciples in pursuit of learning, sacrifice, and transformation. Jesus commanded us to go and make disciples, baptizing them and teaching them to observe His commandments (Matthew 28:19-20). By embracing our own discipleship, we become equipped to fulfill this Great Commission.

Purpose

Michael W. McLemore

My purpose in life is not about my needs and my wants. The reason behind motives, wants, perceived needs and my course of life is governed by the humble realization that I serve a risen Savior. This right is not earned. There was nothing I could do that would offer this entrance before God. The Jews proved it could not be done by the written law. The Gentiles showed it could not be done as a law to themselves, Romans 2. Paul told Timothy that God “has saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace which was granted us in Christ Jesus from all eternity,” 2 Timothy 1:9. Glory to God for this rich blessing of being able to serve a loving Father.

Children of God serve the Lord through the blessing of the grace of God. When it enters the mind of men to forget this grace, lost is the blessing of God. All that we are and all that we can become will only be found in the knowledge that our purpose in life is a single thought: the privilege to serve the Lord.

When my life ends and I am ushered before the great and holy presence of Jehovah, these words will ring in my heart throughout the eternal ages: “Well done, good and faithful servant. You were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your Lord,” Matthew 25:23. Praise God for His revealed purpose
