To think about as you read:

- What lessons should Israel have learned from knowing about the dysfunction that existed within Jacob's family?
- How does this section provide us with opportunity to reflect on our own struggles, e.g. perhaps with jealousy or with maintaining one's integrity?
- Might Joseph have contributed in some way(s) to his own troubles? If so, how?
- In what ways does this section foreshadow the coming and ministry of Christ?
- In what other ways do you think this section advances the salvation story?
- What do we learn about God in this section of the story?
