

A detailed historical map of the Roman Empire, showing various provinces and regions. The map is rendered in a dark, muted color palette. Overlaid on the map is the text "A Colony of the Kingdom" in a large, white, serif font, and "Phil. 3:20-21" in a smaller, white, serif font below it. The map includes labels for numerous Roman provinces such as Gallia, Italia, Aegyptus, and others, as well as geographical features like the Mediterranean Sea and the English Channel.

A Colony of the Kingdom

Phil. 3:20-21

A Colony of the Kingdom

We display what it looks like for Christ to reign (Phil. 1:27).

A historical map of the Roman Empire, showing various provinces and regions. The map is overlaid with large, white, serif text. The text is arranged in three lines, centered horizontally. The background is a dark, muted color, likely a map of the Roman Empire, with various regions and cities labeled in smaller text. The overall tone is historical and scholarly.

A Colony of the Kingdom

We display what it looks like for Christ to reign (Phil. 1:27).

This is a compelling vision for (some of) those outside (Mt. 5:14).

A historical map of the Roman Empire, showing various provinces and regions. The map is overlaid with large, white, serif text. The text is arranged in four lines, each starting with a different biblical reference. The map shows the Mediterranean Sea, the Black Sea, and various Roman provinces like Gallia, Italia, Aegyptus, and others. The text is centered over the map, with the first line at the top, the second and third lines in the middle, and the fourth line at the bottom.

A Colony of the Kingdom

We display what it looks like for Christ to reign (Phil. 1:27).

This is a compelling vision for (some of) those outside (Mt. 5:14).

We declare Jesus' reign (I Pet. 2:9-12).

A historical map of the Roman Empire, showing various provinces and regions. The map is overlaid with large, white, serif text. The text is arranged in four lines, each starting with a large, bold letter. The background is a dark, muted color, and the map details are visible in a lighter shade. The text is centered horizontally and vertically across the map.

A Colony of the Kingdom

We display what it looks like for Christ to reign (Phil. 1:27).

This is a compelling vision for (some of) those outside (Mt. 5:14).

We declare Jesus' reign (1 Pet. 2:9-12).

This is a grand purpose (Isa. 49:6).

A detailed historical map of the Roman Empire, showing various provinces and regions. The map is rendered in a dark, muted color palette. Overlaid on the map is the text "A Colony of the Kingdom" in a large, white, serif font, and "Phil. 3:20-21" in a smaller, white, serif font below it. The map includes labels for numerous Roman provinces such as Gallia, Italia, Aegyptus, and others, as well as geographical features like the Mediterranean Sea and the English Channel.

A Colony of the Kingdom

Phil. 3:20-21