Don't Repeat History!

Galatians was written to a geographical area which is now Turkey. Paul established churches there which honored Jesus and his grace. Today, the major religious identity there is not followers of Jesus, but of Mohammed.

My point is, everywhere that Christianity at one time was strong, has weakened: from Jerusalem originally, to places such as Asia Minor, later Europe, then America. Now other places will one day consider America a "mission field".

Christianity grows then wanes and is either replaced by another religion, or statuesque religious form as seen in European denominationalism, to Community-church-unity where everything is right and accepted, or an outright rejection of God in humanism and secularism. That is history.

Our question is, is the waning of Jesus's Way happening in our lives, homes, and churches? Or are we standing strong in the grace of Jesus, honoring him and his Way?

Knowing Good and Evil: Adam, Eve, and the Tree of Knowledge

Eating the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge represents defining good and evil for oneself—moral autonomy. The problem is that defining good and evil is God’s job, not ours. When we determine for ourselves what is right and wrong, we are seeking to climb onto a throne that rightly belongs to God alone.
