October 2nd – Bus Worker Breakfast

October 5th the Feed the Flock will be an ice cream social. If you have an ice cream maker and a recipe you would like to make, please come at 5 p.m. we will provide the salt and ice for your ice cream maker and the toppings for the ice cream. Please let Eric Carothers, Brent McConnell or Shawn Howell know if you will be making ice cream. If you are not making ice cream, please come at the regular time of 6 p.m. and enjoy the ice cream!

October 9th at 4 p.m. will be Worship in the Woods, weather permitting, and a farewell fellowship for Scott. We will meet at the Fellowship building at 4 p.m. to eat first please bring a covered dish.

October 14th will be a lasagna dinner for the widow and widowers group only. There is a sign-up sheet in the foyer to let us know you are attending. If you can't attend but, would like a dinner delivered, please mark that on the sign-up sheet. You can also call the office to let Sherry know.

Abundant PARENTING...And Grandparenting

I know many in our congregation have already raised children, so what is going to be said this morning could seem like it's "for the younger generation." However, I want to make an observation. Abby and I have long felt that the current "grandparent generation" (ages 45-50+) is the first of its kind. You are likely far more involved in your grandchildren's lives than your parents were, and probably far more involved than you even planned to be. Because of the shift in economics in our country over the last several decades, both parents are often needed to work outside the home, which puts an added strain on figuring out childcare and child raising. Often, the solution for families is to turn to grandparents. Grandparents often become co-parents with their children, helping raise their grandkids. I'm sure for many of you, this isn't the idea you had in mind when you thought of becoming a grandparent—instead of taking them to and from school, feeding them lunch/dinner, and taking them to sports practices, you had planned on having fun sleepovers on Friday or Saturday nights, taking them to a movie or on a trip, then sending them back to mom and dad's. For better or for worse, this has not been the case for many in the current grandparenting generation.

So, as grandparents, you may function more like parents than you want to admit. That's why I think this morning's sermon is for everyone. Whether you want to or not, you are involved in your grandchild's development in a deep way. Although we may mourn the loss of "grandparenting" as we previously knew it, the new way of interacting with grandchildren has such a valuable component to it. You can be far more influential in your grandchildren's lives.

So, if I just described you, I hope you take on your new role with enthusiasm and hope—you can (and are) making a difference in your grandchild's life! And, to the parents, make sure you thank your parents for their help if they are involved in the ways I described above. They already put in their time, but they are going in for another round. They need to be appreciated for this!

Congratulations!

Ian and Kirsten Rouse are the proud new parents of their baby girl, Kelaya Layne. She was born Monday, September 19th, weighed 7 pounds 12 ounces and is 21 inches long. Everyone is doing well.

Thank you

Thank you for all of the cards and phone calls during my recent illness. It was very much appreciated.

M.A.G.I Tree

This month's selected items will be warm weather outfits. We aim to provide each child with a new outfit (shirt, shorts/skirt or dress, underwear, and flipflops). In the back of the church, we have placed the giving tree, just like we do at Christmas, and each tag will have listed boy or girl and an age range. Please consider picking out a child (or as many as you feel led to select) and shopping for them. Stores are marking down summer styles, so now is the time to purchase these items so we can bless the most children possible! We would like to have all items received by Sunday, October 2nd. If you have questions, please contact Sherri Lallathin or Ra Lene Henthorn.
