Summer is Here

Last weekend we celebrated Memorial Day and what many consider to be the beginning of summer. Schools let out, the pools open, and the weather is finally warm enough to begin enjoying the summer activities we love. In many ways, Memorial Day and Labor Day bookend the warm summer vacation months, especially if you have school age children or grandchildren.

This summer, there will be lots of opportunities: trips with friends and family, vacation, fair, truck and tractor pulls, whatever you enjoy. In the busyness and enjoyment of the season and the weather that summer brings, it's easy to forget our spiritual lives. Don't let a trip or vacation get in the way of your worship to God. If you're away on a trip, visit another congregation. If you can make it back to be with us, don't let your tiredness from a great vacation keep you from joining us for worship and class the next day. It's great to enjoy the time away, but don't let that be an excuse for neglecting your spiritual life. I would say the same thing about your personal time with God! I have always struggled when I go away to continue my routine of daily Bible study. It's easy to neglect these things when we are away from our familiar surroundings.

I have found it interesting that when I am away and visit another congregation or I find a new routine for my daily time with God over a week of vacation, I get more out of it. There is something about being in a different environment that allows me to connect with God in a new, fresh way. God desires your time and devotion—He doesn't want you to take a vacation from Him! However you need to this summer, make sure you are staying connected to the Creator.
