The Gift of Singleness

“Someday my prince will come...” So goes the famous line in the song from Disney’s “Snow White.” Before breaking out in song, Snow White describes her ideal prince—“there’s nobody like him anywhere at all.” Disney does a great job at painting the picture of a beautiful, lonely, young girl who is waiting patiently for the perfect man—her prince—to come and sweep her off her feet.

But, what if the prince (or princess) never comes? Is it so bad to spend a significant part of your life—maybe all of your life—single? The movies and music of our culture would lead you to believe so. Rarely do you hear anyone talk about the benefits of being single, especially in the church.

This morning, we’ll look at what Scripture says about being single—it actually says quite a bit! Paul says, about being single, “I wish that everyone was like me.” (I Cor. 7:7) My hope and prayer for our time together this morning is that you will be empowered to live a single life, see it as a viable option, and gain hope for whatever the future might bring—prince or no prince!
